What does quality of life mean to you?

Imagine your child being trapped in their body. They can't walk, talk, sit up, eat, breathe effectively…. this is their quality of life. You are desperately searching for the key; the one thing that will change this quality. You try this and that, traveling all across the country looking for an answer. As a parent, what do you do? Then someone suggests you try horse therapy. Could it really work?

This is how many of the riders at Partners For Progress come to our program – through a parents desperate desire to change the quality of their childs' life…………and YOU make it possible for them. You affect EVERY life at Partners For Progress. Lives like Emma and her family.

Emmas' mom, Rebecca, states, "PFP has been a major contributor to some of Emma's biggest milestones to date. They have helped her develop the core strength and coordination she needed to learn to walk, and her posture is visibly improved after every session. The benefits have also gone far beyond the physical. Over the past 16 months since starting with PFP, Emma's confidence, and eagerness to take on new challenges, has skyrocketed!"…….quality of life.

All of the progress that Emma has made here at Partners For Progress is because of YOU! You may not physically be here caring for a horse or sidewalking in the arena or teaching volunteers how to assist their riders and horses, but without YOU, none of this can happen.

And, none of this can wait. TODAY is the time to take action and give hope. Your action gives the hope to overcome challenges, achieve dreams, and change a childs' life. Make your affirmation of HOPE this holiday season by returning the enclosed sheet or visiting our website to send your gift.

Remember, ALL gifts – even the smallest – CHANGES A LIFE. Thank You!

Sincerely,

Diane Helgeland
